The season of mystic ritual for the Western world happens each December. Darkness comes early in these arcane times and tradition reigns high as humans congregate around decorative firs and twinkling lights to celebrate magic. Metaphysical folk tales are shared, candles are lit, bread is broken, and concealed treasures are bestowed upon significant others. For suspended moments, belief in the unknown seems possible, allowing for small cracks of wonder. It is here that nine artists emerge, bearing little crowns. Manipulating the earthly substances of clay, metal, mineral, wood and pigment, each artist conjures personal imagery of alchemy and enchantment.

Please join Narwhal Art Projects this holiday season as we unveil magical markings for the celebratory spell. Featuring work by Carly Waito, Cody Cochrane, Irana Douer, Katy Horan, Matthew Feyld, Naomi Yasui, Noel Middleton, PowerHaus and Selena Wong. Little Crowns runs from December 11-January 10. An opening reception will take place on December 11 from 7-10pm. Selected artists will be in attendance.
